Art Unit: 2855

1. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:
 - I. Claims 1-11 and 15-17, drawn to multi-sensor pressure probe, classified in class 73, subclass 170.11.
 - II. Claim 12, drawn to MEMS probe unit, classified in class 324, subclass 755.
 - III. Claims 13 and 14, drawn to omni-directional three component flow velocity measurement pressure probe using flexible skin technology, classified in class 73, subclass 716.
 - IV. Claims 18-20, drawn to process of calculating velocity magnitude, the flow angles and the static pressure of a given flow, classified in class 702, subclass 142.
2. The inventions are distinct, each from the other because:
3. Inventions I, II and III are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because the multi-sensor pressure probe of claims 1-11 uses a plurality of sensors and transducers embedded in a probe tip to gain fast velocity and pressure measurements, whereas the multi-hole probe of claims 15-17 only uses a plurality of pressure sensors to produce an instantaneous pressure reading. The subcombination has separate utility such as the use of MEMS technology containing bossed diaphragm structures in order to measure velocity and pressure in unsteady and turbulent flowfields (Invention II) which is distinct from the use of flexible skin technology (Invention III).

4. Inventions IV is unrelated to Inventions I, II and III. Inventions are unrelated if it can be shown that they are not disclosed as capable of use together and they have different modes of operation, different functions, or different effects (MPEP § 806.04, MPEP § 808.01). In the instant case, the process of Invention IV can be practiced by another materially different apparatus as claimed in Inventions I, II and III such as an aircraft speed sensor or a rotating pressure sensor.

5. Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

6. Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).

7. Applicant is reminded that upon the cancellation of claims to a non-elected invention, the inventorship must be amended in compliance with 37 CFR 1.48(b) if one or more of the currently named inventors is no longer an inventor of at least one claim remaining in the application. Any amendment of inventorship must be accompanied by a request under 37 CFR 1.48(b) and by the fee required under 37 CFR 1.17(i).
